

Barrons.com

01.08.2012

Lyonesse Child & Family Foundation Launches School Project Supported by Nelson Mandela

GRAZ, Austria, August 1, 2012 /PRNewswire/ --

Rebuilding the No-Moscow Primary School in Qunu, South Africa, by the Lyonesse Child & Family Foundation started at the celebrations of the Mandela Day on July 18(th) . Nelson Rolihlahla Mandela, winner of the Nobel Peace Prize, is a prominent partner of the project.

Graça Machel, Nelson Mandela's wife, solemnly started construction of the new No-Moscow Primary School in Qunu, the former South African president's birthplace. Also his grandson Mbuso Mandela was present. "We would like to help our friends who live here and who suffer from the obsolete building and the limited resources," explains the 21-year-old who spent much of his childhood in Qunu and who has initiated the cooperation with the Child & Family Foundation.

Graça Machel emphasized that the beginning of construction work at the same time was the emotional beginning of the Mandela Day celebrations which are traditionally being held on July 18(th) . On this day people world-wide are called to do something good for others for 67 minutes - remembering that Nelson Mandela has spent 67 years standing up for justice and human rights.

Nelson Mandela also has been standing up for children and their right to education all his life. "Mandiba adores children," says Graça Machel. "He does everything he can for the children of his country and for offering good education to them." Providing access to education for young people still is of prime importance to him, the 94-year-old emphasized at the celebrations: "Education is important because if you are not educated you can't be a leader."

Thus the Mandela family is very happy about the whole school project. "We thank you for having come all the way from Austria and having chosen this place for you to make a difference in South Africa," affirms Machel. "We are absolutely sure that this is just the beginning of our relationship."

All financial means for building the school were provided by the Lyonesse Child & Family Foundation. At the project's start Lyonesse founder and CEO Hubert Freidl, Nina Passegger, Director Child & Family Foundation, and a LYONESS.TV-team were present in South Africa. "We intend to build the new school in record time. We are planning to realise this project together with the Mandela family within the next six months," Freidl explains. The new school will have seven class-rooms and a library and will offer a better learning environment for the students.

About the Lyonesse Child & Family Foundation

According to the founding idea of the internationally active shopping community Lyonesse, to be strong together as a community, the Lyonesse Child & Family Foundation was founded in 2008 as an independent charitable organisation, which supports national and international aid projects under the motto "Education. Chances. Future." Each Lyonesse member contributes actively to the realization of the Foundation's projects with a part of their purchases. These are mainly projects which create opportunities for children and teenagers in economically deprived countries world-wide.

Belgamediasupport.be 01.08.2012

Lyoness Management GmbH: Lyoness Child & Family Foundation Launches School Project Supported by Nelson Mandela

--

Rebuilding the No-Moscow Primary School in Qunu, South Africa, by the Lyoness Child & Family Foundation started at the celebrations of the Mandela Day on July 18th. Nelson Rolihlahla Mandela, winner of the Nobel Peace Prize, is a prominent partner of the project.

- Cross reference: Picture is available via epa european pressphoto agency and can be downloaded free of charge at:

<http://www.presseportal.de/pm/101544/> -

Graça Machel, Nelson Mandela's wife, solemnly started construction of the new No-Moscow Primary School in Qunu, the former South African president's birthplace. Also his grandson Mbuso Mandela was present. "We would like to help our friends who live here and who suffer from the obsolete building and the limited resources," explains the 21-year-old who spent much of his childhood in Qunu and who has initiated the cooperation with the Child & Family Foundation.

Graça Machel emphasized that the beginning of construction work at the same time was the emotional beginning of the Mandela Day celebrations which are traditionally being held on July 18th. On this day people world-wide are called to do something good for others for 67 minutes - remembering that Nelson Mandela has spent 67 years standing up for justice and human rights.

Nelson Mandela also has been standing up for children and their right to education all his life. "Mandiba adores children," says Graça Machel. "He does everything he can for the children of his country and for offering good education to them." Providing access to education for young people still is of prime importance to him, the 94-year-old emphasized at the celebrations: "Education is important because if you are not educated you can't be a leader."

Thus the Mandela family is very happy about the whole school project. "We thank you for having come all the way from Austria and having chosen this place for you to make a difference in South Africa," affirms Machel. "We are absolutely sure that this is just the beginning of our relationship."

All financial means for building the school were provided by the Lyoness Child & Family Foundation. At the project's start Lyoness founder and CEO Hubert Freidl, Nina Passegger, Director Child & Family Foundation, and a LYONESS.TV-team were present in South Africa. "We intend to build the new school in record time. We are planning to realise this project together with the Mandela family within the next six months," Freidl explains. The new school will have seven classrooms and a library and will offer a better learning environment for the students.

About the Lyoness Child & Family Foundation

According to the founding idea of the internationally active shopping community Lyoness, to be strong together as a community, the Lyoness Child & Family Foundation was founded in 2008 as an independent charitable organisation, which supports national and international aid projects under the motto "Education. Chances. Future." Each Lyoness member contributes actively to the realization of the Foundation's projects with a part of their purchases. These are mainly projects which create opportunities for children and teenagers in economically deprived countries worldwide.

Press-photo:

Nelson Mandela (middle) with his grandson Mbuso Mandela (right) and the Lyoness team (from left to right): Gerhard Buckholz (Lyoness South Africa), company founder and CEO Hubert Freidl, Nina Passegger and Marko Sedovnik.

Credit: LYONESS.TV

Business News Asia 01.08.2012

Lyonesse Child & Family Foundation Launches School Project Supported by Nelson Mandela

Released on August 1st, 2012

Rebuilding the No-Moscow Primary School in Qunu, South Africa, by the Lyonesse Child & Family Foundation started at the celebrations of the Mandela Day on July 18th. Nelson Rolihlahla Mandela, winner of the Nobel Peace Prize, is a prominent partner of the project.

Graca Machel, Nelson Mandela's wife, solemnly started construction of the new No-Moscow Primary School in Qunu, the former South African president's birthplace. Also his grandson Mbuso Mandela was present. "We would like to help our friends who live here and who suffer from the obsolete building and the limited resources", explains the 21-year-old who spent much of his childhood in Qunu and who has initiated the cooperation with the Child & Family Foundation.

Graca Machel emphasized that the beginning of construction work at the same time was the emotional beginning of the Mandela Day celebrations which are traditionally being held on July 18th. On this day people world-wide are called to do something good for others for 67 minutes – remembering that Nelson Mandela has spent 67 years standing up for justice and human rights.

Nelson Mandela also has been standing up for children and their right to education all his life. "Mandiba adores children", says Graca Machel. "He does everything he can for the children of his country and for offering good education to them." Providing access to education for young people still is of prime importance to him, the 94-year-old emphasized at the celebrations: "Education is important because if you are not educated you can't be a leader."

Thus the Mandela-family is very happy about the whole school project. "We thank you for having come all the way from Austria and having chosen this place for you to make a difference in South Africa," affirms Machel. "We are absolutely sure that this is just the beginning of our relationship."

All financial means for building the school were provided by the Lyonesse Child & Family Foundation. At the project's start Lyonesse founder and CEO Hubert Freidl, Nina Passegger, Director Child & Family Foundation, and a LYONESS.TV-team were present in South Africa. "We intend to build the new school in record time. We are planning to realise this project together with the Mandela-family within the next six months," Freidl explains. The new school will have seven class-rooms and a library and will offer a better learning environment for the students.

About the Lyoness Child & Family Foundation

According to the founding idea of the internationally active shopping community Lyoness, to be strong together as a community, the Lyoness Child & Family Foundation was founded in 2008 as an independent charitable organisation, which supports national and international aid projects under the motto “Education. Chances. Future.”. Each Lyoness member contributes actively to the realization of the Foundation’s projects with a part of their purchases. These are mainly projects which create opportunities for children and teenagers in economically deprived countries world-wide.

Finwin.com

01.08.2012

Lyoness Child & Family Foundation Launches School Project Supported by Nelson

Mandela

08/01 07:00 CDT

Lyoness Child & Family Foundation Launches School Project Supported by Nelson Mandela GRAZ, Austria, August 1, 2012

GRAZ, Austria, August 1, 2012 /PRNewswire/ --

Rebuilding the No-Moscow Primary School in Qunu, South Africa, by the Lyoness Child & Family Foundation started at the celebrations of the Mandela Day on July 18th. Nelson Rolihlahla Mandela, winner of the Nobel Peace Prize, is a prominent partner of the project. Graa Machel, Nelson Mandela's wife, solemnly started construction of the new No-Moscow Primary School in Qunu, the former South African president's birthplace. Also his grandson Mbuso Mandela was present. "We would like to help our friends who live here and who suffer from the obsolete building and the limited resources," explains the 21-year-old who spent much of his childhood in Qunu and who has initiated the cooperation with the Child & Family Foundation.

Graa Machel emphasized that the beginning of construction work at the same time was the emotional beginning of the Mandela Day celebrations which are traditionally being held on July 18th. On this day people world-wide are called to do something good for others for 67 minutes - remembering that Nelson Mandela has spent 67 years standing up for justice and human rights.

Nelson Mandela also has been standing up for children and their right to education all his life. "Mandiba adores children," says Graa Machel. "He does everything he can for the children of his country and for offering good education to them." Providing access to education for young people still is of prime importance to him, the 94-year-old emphasized at the celebrations: "Education is important because if you are not educated you can't be a leader."

Thus the Mandela family is very happy about the whole school project. "We thank you for having come all the way from Austria and having chosen this place for you to make a difference in South Africa," affirms Machel. "We are absolutely sure that this is just the beginning of our relationship."

All financial means for building the school were provided by the Lyoness Child & Family Foundation. At the project's start Lyoness founder and CEO Hubert Freidl, Nina Passegger, Director Child & Family Foundation, and a LYONESS.TV-team were present in South Africa. "We intend to build the new school in record time. We are planning to realise this project together with the Mandela family within the next six months," Freidl explains. The new school will have seven class-rooms and a library and will offer a better learning environment for the students.

About the Lyoness Child & Family Foundation

According to the founding idea of the internationally active shopping community Lyoness, to be strong together as a community, the Lyoness Child & Family Foundation was founded in 2008 as an independent charitable organisation, which supports national and international aid projects under the motto "Education. Chances. Future." Each Lyoness member contributes actively to the realization of the Foundation's projects with a part of their purchases. These are mainly projects which create opportunities for children and teenagers in economically deprived countries world-wide.

KingFive.com 01.08.2012

Lyonesse Child & Family Foundation Launches School Project Supported by Nelson Mandela

Rebuilding the No-Moscow Primary School in Qunu, South Africa, by the Lyonesse Child & Family Foundation started at the celebrations of the Mandela Day on July 18th. Nelson Rolihlahla Mandela, winner of the Nobel Peace Prize, is a prominent partner of the project.

Graça Machel, Nelson Mandela's wife, solemnly started construction of the new No-Moscow Primary School in Qunu, the former South African president's birthplace. Also his grandson Mbuso Mandela was present. "We would like to help our friends who live here and who suffer from the obsolete building and the limited resources," explains the 21-year-old who spent much of his childhood in Qunu and who has initiated the cooperation with the Child & Family Foundation.

Graça Machel emphasized that the beginning of construction work at the same time was the emotional beginning of the Mandela Day celebrations which are traditionally being held on July 18th. On this day people world-wide are called to do something good for others for 67 minutes - remembering that Nelson Mandela has spent 67 years standing up for justice and human rights.

Nelson Mandela also has been standing up for children and their right to education all his life. "Mandiba adores children," says Graça Machel. "He does everything he can for the children of his country and for offering good education to them." Providing access to education for young people still is of prime importance to him, the 94-year-old emphasized at the celebrations: "Education is important because if you are not educated you can't be a leader."

Thus the Mandela family is very happy about the whole school project. "We thank you for having come all the way from Austria and having chosen this place for you to make a difference in South Africa," affirms Machel. "We are absolutely sure that this is just the beginning of our relationship."

All financial means for building the school were provided by the Lyonesse Child & Family Foundation. At the project's start Lyonesse founder and CEO Hubert Freidl, Nina Passegger, Director Child & Family Foundation, and a LYONESS.TV-team were present in South Africa. "We intend to build the new school in record time. We are planning to realise this project together with the Mandela family within the next six months," Freidl explains. The new school will have seven class-rooms and a library and will offer a better learning environment for the students.

About the Lyonesse Child & Family Foundation

According to the founding idea of the internationally active shopping community Lyonesse, to be strong together as a community, the Lyonesse Child & Family Foundation was founded in 2008 as an independent charitable organisation, which supports national and international aid projects under the motto "Education. Chances. Future." Each Lyonesse member contributes actively to the realization of the Foundation's projects with a part of their purchases. These are mainly projects which create opportunities for children

Mediawebsite.net

01.08.2012

Lyonesse Child & Family Foundation Launches School Project Supported by Nelson Mandela

GRAZ, Austria, August 1, 2012 /PRNewswire/ --

Rebuilding the No-Moscow Primary School in Qunu, South Africa, by the Lyonesse Child & Family Foundation started at the celebrations of the Mandela Day on July 18th. Nelson Rolihlahla Mandela, winner of the Nobel Peace Prize, is a prominent partner of the project.

Graça Machel, Nelson Mandela's wife, solemnly started construction of the new No-Moscow Primary School in Qunu, the former South African president's birthplace. Also his grandson Mbuso Mandela was present. "We would like to help our friends who live here and who suffer from the obsolete building and the limited resources," explains the 21-year-old who spent much of his childhood in Qunu and who has initiated the cooperation with the Child & Family Foundation.

Graça Machel emphasized that the beginning of construction work at the same time was the emotional beginning of the Mandela Day celebrations which are traditionally being held on July 18th. On this day people world-wide are called to do something good for others for 67 minutes - remembering that Nelson Mandela has spent 67 years standing up for justice and human rights.

Nelson Mandela also has been standing up for children and their right to education all his life. "Mandiba adores children," says Graça Machel. "He does everything he can for the children of his country and for offering good education to them." Providing access to education for young people still is of prime importance to him, the 94-year-old emphasized at the celebrations: "Education is important because if you are not educated you can't be a leader."

Thus the Mandela family is very happy about the whole school project. "We thank you for having come all the way from Austria and having chosen this place for you to make a difference in South Africa," affirms Machel. "We are absolutely sure that this is just the beginning of our relationship."

All financial means for building the school were provided by the Lyonesse Child & Family Foundation. At the project's start Lyonesse founder and CEO Hubert Freidl, Nina Passegger, Director Child & Family Foundation, and a LYONESS.TV-team were present in South Africa. "We intend to build the new school in record time. We are planning to realise this project together with the Mandela family within the next six months," Freidl explains. The new school will have seven class-rooms and a library and will offer a better learning environment for the students.

About the Lyonesse Child & Family Foundation

According to the founding idea of the internationally active shopping community Lyonesse, to be strong together as a community, the Lyonesse Child & Family Foundation was founded in 2008 as an independent charitable organisation, which supports national and international aid projects under the motto "Education. Chances. Future." Each Lyonesse member contributes actively to the realization of the Foundation's projects with a part of their purchases. These are mainly projects which create opportunities for children and teenagers in economically deprived countries world-wide.

Press-photo:

Nelson Mandela (middle) with his grandson Mbuso Mandela (right) and the Lyonesse team (from left to right): Gerhard Buckholz (Lyonesse South Africa), company founder and CEO Hubert Freidl, Nina Passegger and Marko Sedovnik.

Credit: LYONESS.TV

Lyonesse Child & Family Foundation Launches School Project Supported by Nelson Mandela

Persbericht van PR Newswire

GRAZ, Austria, August 1, 2012 /PRNewswire/ --

Rebuilding the No-Moscow Primary School in Qunu, South Africa, by the Lyonesse Child & Family Foundation started at the celebrations of the Mandela Day on July 18th. Nelson Rolihlahla Mandela, winner of the Nobel Peace Prize, is a prominent partner of the project.

Graca Machel, Nelson Mandela's wife, solemnly started construction of the new No-Moscow Primary School in Qunu, the former South African president's birthplace. Also his grandson Mbuso Mandela was present. "We would like to help our friends who live here and who suffer from the obsolete building and the limited resources," explains the 21-year-old who spent much of his childhood in Qunu and who has initiated the cooperation with the Child & Family Foundation.

Graca Machel emphasized that the beginning of construction work at the same time was the emotional beginning of the Mandela Day celebrations which are traditionally being held on July 18th. On this day people world-wide are called to do something good for others for 67 minutes - remembering that Nelson Mandela has spent 67 years standing up for justice and human rights.

Nelson Mandela also has been standing up for children and their right to education all his life. "Mandiba adores children," says Graca Machel. "He does everything he can for the children of his country and for offering good education to them." Providing access to education for young people still is of prime importance to him, the 94-year-old emphasized at the celebrations: "Education is important because if you are not educated you can't be a leader."

Thus the Mandela family is very happy about the whole school project. "We thank you for having come all the way from Austria and having chosen this place for you to make a difference in South Africa," affirms Machel. "We are absolutely sure that this is just the beginning of our relationship."

All financial means for building the school were provided by the Lyonesse Child & Family Foundation. At the project's start Lyonesse founder and CEO Hubert Freidl, Nina Passegger, Director Child & Family Foundation, and a LYONESS.TV-team were present in South Africa. "We intend to build the new school in record time. We are planning to realise this project together with the Mandela family within the next six months," Freidl explains. The new school will have seven class-rooms and a library and will offer a better learning environment for the students.

About the Lyoness Child & Family Foundation

According to the founding idea of the internationally active shopping community Lyoness, to be strong together as a community, the Lyoness Child & Family Foundation was founded in 2008 as an independent charitable organisation, which supports national and international aid projects under the motto "Education. Chances. Future." Each Lyoness member contributes actively to the realization of the Foundation's projects with a part of their purchases. These are mainly projects which create opportunities for children and teenagers in economically deprived countries world-wide.

Press-photo:

Nelson Mandela (middle) with his grandson Mbuso Mandela (right) and the Lyoness team (from left to right): Gerhard Buckholz (Lyoness South Africa), company founder and CEO Hubert Freidl, Nina Passegger and Marko Sedovnik.

Credit: LYONESS.TV